LABOR CONDITIONS OF ALL COAL FIELDS BETTER

MARKETS ALSO ARE IMPROVING MOST EVERYWHERE.

Output of Bituminous Product Up to the Middle of Current Month Exceedingly Good and In Excess of That For Same Time Last Year—Slight Falling Away In Coke.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—Analysis of working conditions as reported by forty-nine hundred and sixty-four mines the country over with a total production of 6,311,549 net tons and present capacity of 8,407,437 net tons, during the week ended January 4th, shows the operators reporting produced 75 per cent of the total estimated output, figures being operated at 74.6 per cent of their full time, as compared with 68.1 per cent during Christmas week and 73.1 per cent during the corresponding week of 1918. The greatest improvement occurred during the week in labor conditions, the losses of full time attributed thereto declining from 16.8 per cent during the week of December 28th, to 5.9 per cent for the country as a whole. Market conditions also improved, the loss of full time attributed to that cause changing from 17 to 12 per cent. Business conditions continued to be good in Pennsylvania, the operators in the western district covering the only field in which loss of time on account of no market was reported. This loss was, however, slight, and amounted to but 2 per cent of their full time. Noticeable improvement occurred during the week in transportation conditions in the Somerset county, Pa., and in the New River and Winding Gulf districts of West Virginia. Carriers reports for the week ended January 11th show increase in cars loaded in all districts compared with the week preceding. The greatest increases occurred in Central Pennsylvania, Ohio and the district including Illinois, Indiana and Western Kentucky. In the last named district, the increase amounted to 10,300 cars of approximately 30 per cent.

Bituminous coal to New England during the week ended January 11th is estimated at 255,255 net tons, as compared with 240,000 net tons or 14 per cent below the shipments during the week preceding. Rail receipts, as well as tidewater shipments, with the exception of the tonnage loaded at Baltimore, declined during the current week. A decrease in tidewater shipments of approximately 113,000 net tons or 17 per cent during the week ended January 11th as compared with the week preceding was brought about by the decline in shipments from New York and Philadelphia which amounted to 33 per cent. The shipments from Baltimore were only slightly lower than the week preceding, while shipments from Hampton Roads exceeded those of January 4th by twenty thousand net tons or 9 per cent.

The output of soft coal during the week ended January 11th was exceedingly good and in addition to exceeding the output of the week preceding, showed an improvement over the corresponding week of 1918. Preliminary estimates place production of bituminous coal, (including lignite and coal made into coke), during the week ended January 11th at 16,287,000 net tons as compared with 8,428,000 net tons during the week of January 4th, and 19,163,000 net tons during the week of January 11, 1918. The daily average during the current week is estimated at 1,715,000 net tons as against 1,896,000 net tons the daily average for the coal year to date, and 1,757,000 net tons for the same period of last year.

The production of anthracite, estimated at 1,651,000 net tons, exceeds production during the week ended January 4th by 562,000 net tons or approximately 29 per cent, but fell sixty-eight thousand net tons or approximately 4 per cent below production of the corresponding week of 1918. The daily average during the current week is estimated at 275,000 net tons compared with 212,000 net tons for the coal year to date, and 319,000 net tons for the same period of last year.

While the production of anthracite for the coal year to date is 1,600,000 net tons or 2 per cent below production during a similar period of 1918 it is nevertheless equivalent to demand. Figures now available for the nine months ended December 31, 1918, show that the shipment originally outlined by the anthracite committee of the fuel administration on domestic sizes of anthracite (including pea), to have been practically fulfilled.

The Coking Industry.

By-product coke production during the week ended January 11th is estimated at 541,699 net tons and falls but slightly below the production of the week preceding. It is, however, approximately 50 per cent in excess of production during the corresponding week of 1918. The plants of the country were operated during the week at 83.1 per cent of their full time as compared with 82.2 per cent during the week of January 4th. The slight increase in loss of time during the current week compared with the week preceding was brought about by a shortage of by-product coal in Pennsylvania and in repairs to plants in Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio, Minnesota and Pennsylvania are the only states reporting losses of time due to lack of demand.

The production of beehive coke in the United States during the week ended January 11th is estimated at 538,000 net tons, an increase over the week of January 4th and but little less than the production in the corresponding week of 1918, when the output was 555,000 net tons. The operators in the Connellsville, Greensburg and Latrobe districts of Pennsylvania during the week ended January 11th produced 309,416 net tons of coke, operating their plants at 72.6 per cent of their full time as against 70.4 per cent during the week ended January 4th. The same operators produced 140,000 net tons of coal.
